

Michelle Trapp
Corporate Business Development Manager
Michels Corporation

An active industry member for more than 20 years, Michelle's main focus is on business development of construction in the oil and gas markets. As the Manager of Corporate Business Development, Michelle assists in the overall leadership of the team, identifying new opportunities, enhancing awareness of the Michels brand, and developing and preserving of customer relationships. An advocate for the energy industry as a whole, Michelle participates on many association committees and teams. Currently she is the Chair of the MEA's Energetic Women's Planning Team, First Chair of AGA OSEAM and Secretary of the SGA Associate Members Managing Committee. Michelle's passion for diversity in the workforce is evident by her internal and external efforts in the industry and community. She encourages women, beginning at the grade school level, to pursue non-traditional careers in the construction field, specifically in operations and engineering.

Michels partners with its energy, utility and transportation customers to deliver construction, engineering and procurement services. As one of the largest, most diversified utility and transportation contractors in North America, Michels keeps pace with the evolving demands of the gas, oil and electrical industries. Michels is among the worldwide leaders in Horizontal Directional Drilling and other safe, accurate and reliable construction techniques. Michels' experience includes transmission and distribution pipeline construction, facility construction and fabrication
